

Brittany L. Adikes

Associate
Direct Dial: 503.499.4508
brittany.adikes@bullivant.com

Brittany Adikes is a litigation defense attorney who represents companies and individuals involved in commercial, products liability, professional malpractice, and catastrophic injury disputes.

Before joining Bullivant, Brittany worked as an associate for a defense firm in New York. Prior to entering private practice, her roles as a former legal intern for the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency gave her an appreciation for federal regulations and guidelines, as well as learning the importance of diligent research and developing strategies for case resolutions.

Brittany completed the Advanced Combined Degree Program (B.S./J.D.) at St. John's University School of Law. While in law school, she served as President of the Environmental Law Society and Secretary of the Family Law Society and competed on the Polestino Trial Advocacy Institute's mock trial competition team.

Practice Areas

Personal & Catastrophic Injury Litigation
Product Liability
Professional Liability / D&O
Commercial Litigation

Education

St. John's University School of Law - J.D., 2017
St. John's University - B.S. in Legal Studies, cum laude, 2015

Bar Admissions

- Oregon, 2020
- New York, 2018

Professional and Civic Involvement

- New York State Bar Association (Member, Environmental and Energy Law Section, 2017-Present)
- Oregon State Bar (Member, Environmental & Natural Resources Law Section, Cannabis Law Section, Business Law Section, and Sustainable Future Section, 2020-Present)

Outside Interests

Outside of the office, Brittany enjoys traveling, hiking, and exploring nature.